A tough grind:

Senior Kevin Walker attempts to break free of a Kenner defender at the line of scrimmage during a home game on Oct. 10. Walker rushed for 162 yards in a losing cause that saw the Red Hawks lose for the fourth game in a row, 19-7. Walker scored the lone touchdown. Juniors won their third game, 36-18, to improve to 3-0-1.

Literacy lacking:

Although HHSS students show some improvement 29 percent don't pass provincial standard test

SHERYL LOUCKS

Staff Reporter

Local high school students' scores on the Grade 10 literacy test were just slightly behind the provincial and Trillium Lakelands District School Board averages.

Gary Brohman, Haliburton Highlands Secondary School principal, says the scores have improved from the pilot that ran the previous year. He attributes this, in part, to some students realizing that this time it counts and they have to pass this two-day test before they can graduate.

Even so 29 per cent did not make the cut.

"Our job is to aim for a 100 per cent rate. So we'll never be satisfied with the test scores," says Brohman.

The test is broken down into reading and writing components. The board and province average pass rate was 75 per cent with 71 per cent of HHSS students passing. (Students only receive a pass or failing grade and not a numerical or alphabetical grade.) Pass rates within the board ranged from 83 per cent in Huntsville to 57 per cent in Gravenhurst.

Slightly more students at HHSS passed the reading portion of the test than the writing, with 15 per cent of students passing neither. Students only have to rewrite the component of the test they failed unless they failed both reading and writing.

Some students will be receiving these results just before they are encouraged to sit again for this year's test scheduled for Oct. 23 and 24.

Brohman explained that a three-pronged school action plan is already in place to work towards improving the scores. Every Monday Grade 10 students have been doing test practices.

"Part of succeeding on the test is following directions precisely. If a question calls for a three-paragraph answer you write three paragraphs, not three paragraphs and one sentence. These instructions can be like trying to follow the instructions to put a bike together or set a VCR," says Brohman. "Just getting kids to follow instructions precisely is huge."

The second aspect of the plan is a literacy class where kids are learning the basics of grammar and sentence structure. There is also remedial help available to students.

Water trails get Living Legacy dollars

Two years of work have paid off for the Haliburton Highlands Water Trails committee. It has succeeded in securing funding of $50,000 per year for the next three years to maintain the campsites and canoe routes through 24,000 hectares of the Frost Centre.

Jolanta Kowalski, Ministry of Natural Resources spokesperson, confirmed that the grant from the MNR Living Legacy program has been approved. She says the money for 2002 to 2003 has been designated for expenditures such as signage, public administration fees, an access point needs study, a feasibility study for expanding their management model to the rest of the county, contracting someone to do site maintenance and the creation of an information brochure.

Fred Shuttleworth, committee chair, was thrilled with the news.

"That's great. That's incredible. That means next year's going to be a good year," Shuttleworth said after MNR technician Gary Clements broke the news at a recent HHWT committee meeting.

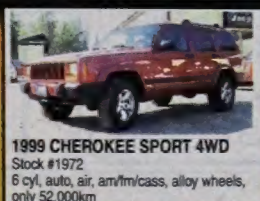

"In a day when governments move slowly, this happened very quickly. That's fabulous. It will pay for

Has it been at least three years since you were at school? Do you have a yearning to be an engineer but don't know how you could afford the education costs? We got a call from Jack Billingsley, the Class of 1948 1/2 engineering graduate from Queen's University. (After the war, the university fast-tracked students so one class graduated mid-year.) He and his classmates have put together a bursary fund which provides a mature student with $53,000 over four years for an engineering degree from Queen's. There are now three people in the system: a 29-year-old father of two from Ottawa; a 29-year-old father of two from New Brunswick; and a 30-year-old man from Kingston. But believe it or not, the bursary always has a hard time finding candidates. If you or anyone you know would like to apply for Science 1948 1/2 Mature Student $50,000 Bursary, please contact Teresa Alm, Associate University Registrar for Student Awards, Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., K7L 3N6, telephone 613-533-2216 or fax 613-533-6409.

Local Legion robbed

is the latest of many Legions to be hit in recent string of robberies*

SHERYL LOUCKS

Staff Reporter

It was with a heavy heart that Ethel Galvin, Haliburton's Royal Canadian Legion Branch 129 president, went to investigate how much damage had been caused, and how much they had lost, when the Legion was robbed in the early hours of Sunday morning.

"I told my husband as I left to come over here, that it felt just like when you have to go to the funeral parlor. I thought, oh I really don't want to do this," Galvin recalled as she walked through the building pointing out the damage.

Lou Trepanier, branch public relations officer, reported to The Echo in a press release that thousands of dollars were stolen out of a safe. Galvin said they were not releasing exact figures or an estimate of the damage until their insurance company gave them an assessment.

"I can tell you it is more than what we're insured for," she sighed.

Bob Walli, OPP staff sergeant and Minden detachment commander, commented that several Legions have been robbed over the past few months, but this was the first in Haliburton County.

"There have been a number of break-ins (at Legions), such as Apsley and in the City of Kawartha Lakes," says Walli.

Galvin says she has heard stories of thefts at 10 different Legions including possible arson after a legion was robbed in Barrie.

"There's a lot of rumours but I've heard (Legions in) Bobcaygeon and Warkworth have also been hit," says Galvin.

In Haliburton, a wedding party was held Saturday night at the Legion. The bartender closed up around 2:30 a.m. Sunday morning and they suspect the robbery to have occurred between 3 a.m. and 5 a.m.

The thieves got in by cutting the outside phone lines to disconnect the security system. The lines were also cut about a month ago leading Galvin to suspect there was an earlier attempt or a test run first.

The front doors were pried open and the thieves proceeded to smash a window in the banquet hall door on the upper floor in order to unlock it. Finding nothing of interest they went downstairs where it appears they used crowbars to pry open all of the doors and also cut the phone lines inside.

"It definitely wasn't an inside job because they did not go straight for what they wanted. They opened rooms but then didn't seem to take anything in them," says Galvin.

None of the memorabilia or showcases were disturbed. All of the full bottles of liquor and all of the cigarettes were stolen from the bar. Some cases of beer were taken but most of the beer was left because they could not easily get into where it was kept.

The cash register at the bar was opened and money along with a few ticket stubs from draws they are holding was taken.

SHERYL LOUCKS/Echo

Toonies and loonies amid the rubble of a destroyed safe are all that is left of several thousand dollars after a robbery at the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 129 in Haliburton in the early hours of Sunday morning.

It appears they proceeded to the office prying apart the wooden door frame to get in. They jimmied open and wrecked any locked desks but left the office computer alone.

A large safe at the back of the office seems to have been cut through with a grinder. A pipe from the back of the building was then used to break through four inches of cement lining the safe.

"There was a lot more money than usual in the safe because we'd had a large meat draw, a funeral tea, and we're doubly out because of the wedding since some of their money (from the bar) was in there too," says Galvin.

Trepanier's release expresses the Legion members' dismay that anyone would rob a volunteer organization dedicated to assisting veterans and their families.

Anyone with any information about this crime is asked to call Crime Stoppers 1-800-222-8477 or the police.

Ethel Galvin, president of the Haliburton Royal Canadian Legion, shows how the thieves broke into the office by damaging the casing around the door.

Board to spend $435,000 on computer overhaul

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

The following are brief reports of items discussed at Tuesday night's meeting of the Trillium Lakelands District School Board in Haliburton.

The board will upgrade its administrative computer system at a cost of $435,000. The board has $47,000 in reserve and the balance will be drawn from working capital.

Superintendent Ed Hodgins said that, although it will cost $47,000 a year to maintain the new system, it will pay for itself in five years because of cost savings in having better, more efficient operations.

For example, Hodgins said the board will be able to reduce payroll costs by $55,000 a year and software maintenance fees by $37,000. (Right now payroll is done manually.) There will be absenteeism reduction due to improved monitoring, valued at a saving of $20,000.

"It will give managers a better data base to work from and more timely information," Hodgins said in an interview. "It allows you to monitor your absenteeism more effectively."

Other operational efficiencies are estimated to be $35,000.

The net savings a year will be $100,000.

It will also streamline a lot of information that has to be input.

However, this doesn't mean the board's spending will go down. Hodgins said the Ministry of Education is constantly giving the board new tasks to perform. "[These savings] might allow us to redeploy staff and pick up new tasks."

Under provincial rules, the board cannot spend more on administration than levels set by the ministry. The board, however, has been spending less than the provincial level so the costs can be absorbed.

Trustee Rick Johnson asked if this could fall under the cost of amalgamation, and therefore be eligible for provincial assistance.

Hodgins said the board has already introduced a uniform system and the new computer system is a step up from what the former boards had.

The expenditure was approved.

Assessment handbook

Four years after the amalgamation of the former Haliburton, Victoria and Muskoka boards, Trillium Lakelands is close to having a handbook on how students are to be assessed.

"There's light at the end of the tunnel and I don't think it's a train," said superintendent Dale Robinson.

This board's document is largely based on a document produced – and purchased for a copyright fee – by York Region's board.

Robinson said that evaluating students, and giving them a mark based on skills learned, is one of the most important things teachers do.

"Teachers are paid to make these kinds of decisions and we trust them."

What weight do you give different components? How are they translated into marks?

"Report cards are extremely important," Robinson said. "They're a key communication instrument for parents. That's how they know, really, how their child is doing."

Trustees passed the new policy on assessment, evaluation and reporting at the meeting.

The policy has the following six guiding principles, with Robinson's comments in quotations.

- The primary purpose of assessment is to improve student learning. "Always the objective is to have students perform at a higher level the next time around."

- Assessment practices are fair and equitable for all students.

- Communication about assessment is ongoing, clear and meaningful. "Where exactly do they stand?"

- Professional development and collaboration support assessment – "What each of us will do to help our students to do better." The board is committed to helping teachers improve their assessment skills.

- Partners in education are involved in the assessment process. "Parents and students need to understand how teachers are assessing their work."

- Assessment practices are regularly reviewed and refined. "We can always do better."

Williams Landing says thanks

Those involved with the development of 18 cottages make donations worth $6,400

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

When John Puffer and Joe Giglio were planning how to transform the former Camp Gay Venture into Williams Landing, it was very important to them that the new cottage development naturally fit in along the Lake Kashagawigamog shoreline.

They continued their commitment to the Highlands by also deciding to hire local contractors and services, and buying the vast amount of their furnishings and supplies locally.

On Thursday afternoon, with eight of the cottages occupied, Puffer and Giglio invited those contractors and suppliers to an appreciation day at Williams Landing to say thanks.

Together, they also found a way to say thanks to the wider community.

The contractors and suppliers presented a cheque for $3,500 to the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association's fish hatchery and Puffer and Giglio donated $3,000 to Sir Sandford Fleming College's building fund."

HHOA President John Ball called the donation "beautiful... It's really what we need."

Barb Bolin, campus director, said that Williams Landing shared many of the same philosophies as the college - growing in a way that fits in with the Highlands' way of life.

Giglio, who designed the 18 cottages, was effusive in his praise of the contractors. "John and I had a vision and you made it a reality," he told the 50 or so people gathered at the site.

Ground was first broken in February. "After working out the wrinkles on the first three cottages," he said, "the contractors started working as a team, communicating with each other and working towards the time line that John and I had given them, that is 18 cottages by Christmas, a pretty tall order..."

"And here we are with a sold-out project - 180 five-week intervals [10 per cottage] with 12 cottages occupied by November 7 and 18 basements in the ground."

Sixty of the 68 camp buildings which were on the 42-acre property have been donated to local camps. Windows from the other cabins have been transformed into mirrors and frames; the cottages are decorated with historic pictures of the camp and other memorabilia.

With all the contractors and suppliers gathered behind them at Williams Landing, electrician Peter McTeague and Williams Landing manager Karen Kleer presents a cheque for $3,000 to Barb Bolin, who's spearheading the campaign to raise $2.5 million for the new Sir Sandford Fleming College campus in Glebe Park. The donation was from Williams Landings partners John Puffer and Joe Giglio in honour of the contractors and suppliers.

The contractors and suppliers who are working on building the 18 cottages at Williams Landing have donated $3,500 to the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association's fish hatchery, which will be continuing its spawning bed rehabilitation project on Lake Kashagawigamog next summer. Bill Tallman of B.T.'s Contracting made the presentation to HHOA President John Ball and hatchery manager Kyla Matheson at an appreciation day at Williams Landing.

The cottages have earned praise from buyers and also passersby on the lake. The lot sizes are larger than they had to be and the developers tried to use the footprints of the former buildings as often as possible to reduce the number of trees which had to be cut. The cottages are well back from the lake, linked by a one-kilometre walking path.

Williams Landing was modelled after Chandler Point, Puffer and Giglio's first successful cottage development on Kashagawigamog. Owners purchase five weeks of use a year and then share the cost of maintaining the property.

Eagle Lake cabin burns down on Thanksgiving weekend

ALLISON TAYLOR

Staff Reporter

Black smoke from a blazing fire overpowered the Eagle Lake area Oct. 13, after a fire ravaged a small cabin on Old Eagle Lake Road over the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

"The fire is undetermined right now," said Dysart Fire Chief Miles Maughan. "We don't have a whole lot to go on at this point."

Around 5:30 p.m. just as most of Dysart's volunteer firefighters were sitting down to a turkey dinner, and celebrating the holiday with their families, a passing motorist on Old Eagle Lake Road (also known as Tower Hill Road) noticed a black plume of smoke and a blazing cabin on the west side of the road and immediately called for help, Maughan said.

Ontario Provincial Police and the Dysart Fire Department arrived on the scene, but by the time they got there, "the cabin was completely engulfed," Maughan said.

The firefighters spent over three hours battling the blaze, filling the trucks with water from Eagle Lake, but the cabin burnt right to the ground, he said.

The cabin was set approximately 200 yards back from the road, but Maughan said there was a good sized driveway, giving the fire trucks lots of room to manoeuvre.

No one was at home at the time of the fire. Maughan wasn't certain but he said the cabin looked like it was an old hunting camp.

Maughan was in the midst of filling out the report and did not name the owners of the cabin.

Real world classroom for pursuit of knowledge

Casting enthusiasm:

Rotary Park in Haliburton was taken over by students in the pursuit of education on Wednesday, Sept. 25. The park was transformed into a living science classroom. On the beach there were five tanks holding live fish such as minnows, walleye, perch, and bass, while up on the lawn there was a collection of insects consumed for food by the fish, and interactive games illustrating how different fishes function, according to the specific body types of each species. More than a 100 students from HHSS and JDHES participated in the joint project organized between HHOA, MNR, HHSS and JDHES. Senior high school students, under the supervision of MNR officers, taught the Grade 4s from JDHES the importance of the balance of the eco-system. All of the students will apply this knowledge to in class science study throughout the rest of the year.

Healthy food continues to rise in cost

SHERYL LOUCKS

Staff Reporter

Some people may still be feeling full from Thanksgiving dinner while others are likely trying to stretch any leftovers they may have as lower income families face an increasing struggle to find the dollars to fill a grocery cart each week.

The newest report on the cost of healthy eating in Haliburton, Northumberland counties and City of Kawartha Lakes, generated by the district Health Unit, suggests the cost of feeding an average family of four is $126.20 per week, up seven dollars from last year and up 16.5 per cent over the last four years for the same basket of nutritious foods.

Dr. Alex Hukowich, medical officer of health, says food is the first thing to get cut from most families' budgets. The report, which uses current data for social assistance and minimum wage, says a low income family on minimum wage would use 38 per cent of their budget to eat healthily while a middle income family would spend only 13 per cent.

"We'll (society) spend all kinds of money on looking after you if you get sick from bad eating but we don't look at the problem of stopping people from getting sick from not eating healthy," says Hukowich.

Rosie Kadwell, public health dietitian, would like to change that. She is inviting agencies and individuals to a brown bag lunch at 11:30 a.m. at the Health Unit on Oct. 17, World Food Day, to discuss what gaps there are in the community and how to properly provide families with food.

"At the end of the growing season there is always excess vegetables in people's gardens, like zucchini for example. Everyone's got zucchini. So how do we get that produce into the hands of people who need it? Perhaps we could use a community kitchen to freeze it, bake it into bread but find some way to distribute it," says Kadwell.

Kadwell says when reading the report, it is important for people to understand that it does not include a coffee on the way to work or the price of special foods for those with allergies to foods such as wheat. Other items such as toiletries, paper towel, laundry detergent or cleaners are not included. The costs reported are just that of 66 items of nutritious food, no chips, chocolate or soft drinks, in local grocery stores in Haliburton and the neighbouring counties.

Steve Wesley, who works in social services, says the healthy eating report never leaves his workers' side and they are constantly using it with their clients.

"This report is worth its weight in gold. People are embarrassed and clients feel guilty about not being able to budget. Usually we show them the report and they see they're actually doing a good job with what they have," says Wesley.

Schools are also increasingly helping to feed children through snack and breakfast programs. Karen Phipps, a local coordinator, says they have received $10,000 from IGA, the second payment in a three-year commitment that is solidifying the snack program. Parents also contribute to the program.

New this year is a breakfast program at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden and snack program at the Cardiff Elementary School.

"I'm beginning to see a ripple effect of kids taking what they're learning about healthy snacks and foods back to their families. I'm starting to see how the community is working to close the gap (between those who can afford food and those who can't)," says Phipps.

Discussion heats up over leaky roof at Bicroft Community Centre

Special to The Echo

The following is a brief synopsis of discussions held during the October 8 Highlands East council meeting.

The opening of the single bid tendered by T.D. Ward General Contracting, in the amount of $59,850.45 (GST included), to replace the leaking roof on the Bicroft community centre, led to some heated discussion and a recorded vote.

Council members were in agreement that it was unfortunate that such a costly decision had to be made on the basis of a single bid. They disagreed, however, on whether the bid should be accepted.

Those arguing in favour of accepting it noted that the roof was leaking now, and required quick attention. Local contractors, they noted, were all busy, as borne out by the lack of interest in the tender, and that further efforts to procure bids were unlikely to provoke any more interest, a better price, and would therefore, only delay the inevitable. With the roof already leaking, further delays might prove to be even more costly.

Deputy Reeve Chuck Viner argued that while he recognized that the work needed to be done, he was uncomfortable allocating that amount of money on the basis of one bid and advocated re-tendering. The recorded vote fell as follows:

Keith Tallman, Reeve: Yes
Bill Howe, Bicroft: Yes
Suzanne Partridge Cardiff: Yes
Chuck Viner, Glamorgan: No
Gary Stoughton, Monmouth: Yes
A resolution passed accepting the bid.

Wilberforce well uranium levels

Environmental Operations Supervisor Glen Couvert advised council that with recently imposed, stricter water quality standards the uranium levels in the Wilberforce well no longer met provincial guidelines. While regular quarterly samples had, in the past, always fallen well below the old 1 ppm limit, and continue to do so, they do not comply with the new, stricter limits. There has been no change in the quality of the water, just a change in the guidelines.

As a result, Highlands East finds itself under a provincial Order to Comply, and must investigate ways of reducing the uranium levels. Efforts are underway to identify more precisely the type of uranium, and to assess uranium levels in water in the general area.

Septic waste disposal

Couvert also informed council that further to an inquiry into the possibility of the municipality providing holding tanks at the Bicroft lagoon site for winter disposal of septic waste by private haulers, the MOE had indicated that a change in the site's certification would be required. As a result, a feasibility study must be completed. Thus, there will be no septic waste disposal services provided by the municipality this winter.

Plans were made to post notice of this in local papers to allow residents time to have their septic serviced prior to freeze-up.

Nurse Practitioner

Reeve Keith Tallman brought council up-to-date on the possibility of Wilberforce acquiring a nurse practitioner for its medical centre. New government money has recently become available and it is now possible, he explained, for the municipality to apply for funding to be directed towards a nurse practitioner program. A resolution passed agreeing to seek an application for this funding.

Free ice time for schools

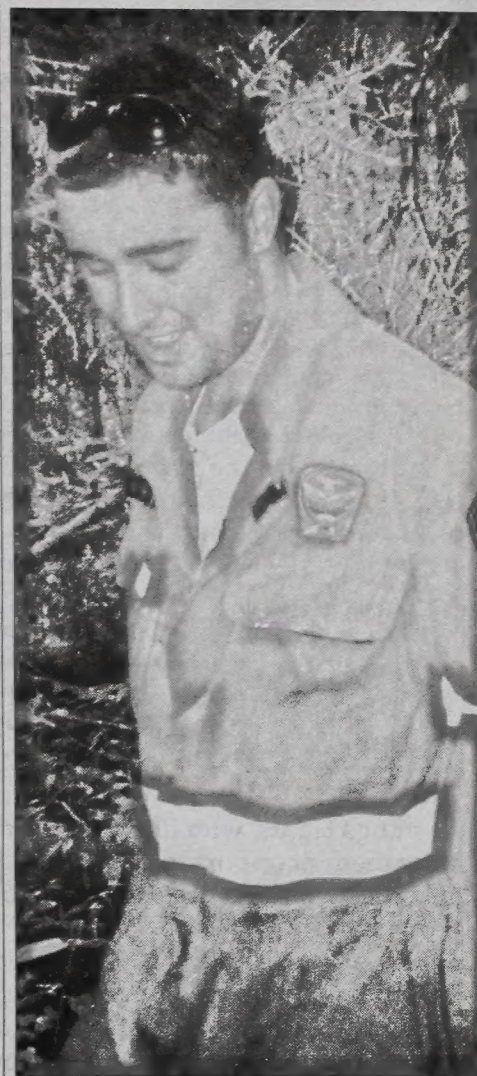

Council agreed unanimously to offer the local schools one hour a week of free ice time so that all students would be able to take advantage of the opportunity for physical activity.

It had originally been thought that a charge of $1/student should apply, but Monmouth Councillor Gary Stoughton pointed out that the charge would mean that some students might be excluded from the program, and that since the municipality offered the community free ice time slots on the weekend, it only made sense to offer the children a free hour during the week.

The regular booking rate was also set at $90 (including GST) per hour for ice rentals.

County roads

General discontent with the maintenance of county roads within Highlands East prompted a resolution indicating that the county be advised of a number of ongoing concerns, including the delay in replacing downed guard rails on CR 503, and problems on the McGillvray Road, the Buck Lake Road and others.

Jay Mole, an HHSS graduate, was recently accepted as firefighter with the City of Barrie Fire Department. He graduated from fire and emergency service program at Georgian College and was employed by the Ministry of Natural Resources in Dryden as a forest firefighter for three years.

Making the grade

Public schools are faced with an incredibly difficult task. Paid for by society, they have to accommodate every type of student that society creates: the keener who wants to do well and focuses on his or her studies; the would-do-well-if-they-could child who'd be able to accomplish more if their home life was more stable; and the myriad of other students, who, while they have great strengths and abilities, don't do well academically. Every student learns in a different way, but unfortunately, teachers are too swamped with responsibilities to be able to adapt to each and every one.

But that's also the glory of the public education system. It recognizes that every student has the right to grow and learn regardless of whether they're an A student or have Down's

echo editorial

— martha perkins

Syndrome. It also recognizes that as a society, we don't want or need only those people who do well academically. We need people who work well with their hands, who can solve problems, who can fix things for us, who like to do manual labour. To deny them of opportunities to find their niche is one of the cruellest things we can do. Also the most short-sighted.

This past weekend, the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School recognized some of its best students. Students who face years of education before they can start earning a living deserve and need the financial support that such awards offer. But it's also nice to see the list of awards grow and expand to include not only the students with the top marks in academic subjects, but also those who are learning a trade, or who, while not being at the top of the class in terms of marks, need the extra boost of a bursary.

The high school is also working on ways to make sure that more students pass the Grade 10 literacy test. If they don't pass it at least once in their high school careers, they won't be able to get their diplomas. Haliburton's marks were in the middle of the pack — not the highest in the district, but not far off the provincial average. One problem was that students didn't do as they were told when they wrote the test. Other students don't respond well to the types of questions being asked; the questions don't reflect the way they think. The school is providing tutoring to help students overcome these problems.

There was once a very smart Grade 12 math teacher. One day, this math teacher was told by one of his students that the assignment he had just assigned was incredibly stupid. The assignment had no application outside of that classroom and would do nothing to help students deal with any of life's future demands.

The teacher agreed with the student making the complaint (that's part of the reason why he was so smart.) Being able to solve that particular math problem would make absolutely no difference in the student's life. However, answering the problem correctly, and thereby earning a good mark, would show a future employer that the student was able to take something new, understand it and apply it. It wasn't the math problem itself that mattered, it was the learning how to answer it. (And since that was an answer that finally made sense, the student agreed to ace the question.)

We all need indicators to show whether we're grasping something new. Tests are not pleasant exercises, but they provide a guideline, an indication of whether the teaching methods are working. HHSS is to be credited for realizing that it can always do better. Doing better is something it asks of its students and it's therefore willing to do the same itself.

Now, there's another lesson worth learning.

Buck's fever

They say that the whitetail deer has one of the most sensitive noses on this planet. In fact, there are reports that these animals can scent a man up to 400 yards away if the wind is right. And, since the wind is right after most hunt camp meals, it would seem that the average hunter doesn't stand a chance.

Fortunately, bowhunters have devised many clever tactics for avoiding detection.

How serious do they get? Well, some will steer clear of spicy foods, strong drink, smoke and gas fumes in an effort to become virtually scentless for the entire deer season. Of course, they make up for this by the time ice fishing comes around, but still.

One fellow I know, we'll call him Buck, actually stops eating red meat a full month before the deer season. I tried that once but switched back quickly as I really don't enjoy my steaks well-done. To make matters worse, Buck also bathes in baking soda and leaves his hunting clothes in a bag filled with cedar boughs. He then utilizes fox urine as a cover scent on his rubber boots and abstains from physical contact with his wife. Of course, after he's doused himself in fox urine, she's not exactly going out of her way to contact Buck either. Is it any wonder that Buck is happiest in autumn?

Buck also knows that, to a game animal, there's nothing more repugnant than the tell-tale smell of human waste. He first learned this when he came face to face with a big, angry bear. Knowing this, he also goes to great effort to avoid contaminating his hunting area with urine when deer hunting. If Mother Nature calls, Buck simply relieves himself in an empty plastic bottle he brings along so that not a drop hits the ground and alerts his quarry. Buck keeps this bottle in the right hand pocket of his back pack. This is not to be confused with the apple juice bottle, another natural scent you'll note, which he keeps in the left hand pocket.

The whole point of this exercise is to enable Buck to get very close to a trophy animal so that he can fling an arrow at it.

All these precautions sound like the right thing to do until you consider another fellow I know. This guy has, on several occasions, actually had to put down his coffee mug and put out a cigar so that he could shoot his deer.

He eats spicy foods, ignores the wind and often builds campfires during the hunt. He is not averse to marking trees near his watch either. Fortunately, it's just a cheap old Timex. The only thing he and Buck agree on is avoiding Buck's wife during hunting season. Like Buck, he gets deer too.

This happens often enough to drive Buck crazy. But every now and then, Buck's hard work and commitment pay off too. I happened by once as he stood over a fine buck that he had arrowed. Buck was proud as punch and said the occasion called for a drink. As we clinked bottles and swigged back, I made a passing comment there is nothing like cold apple juice on a frosty October morning.

Buck just spit out his drink and quickly put his bottle back in the right hand pocket of his pack. That day, I was even more surprised to learn that his scent discipline didn't just stop with the filling of his tag. Why, the minute we got back, Buck brushed his teeth seven or eight times. And wouldn't you know it, the toothpaste flavour was wintergreen.

Cold

JANET SHIVERED AS SHE ENTERED her office. The outdoor temperature had plunged the night before and the office building's heating system had not yet adjusted. So she plugged in a small heater kept by her desk for this very purpose and threw an old sweater over her shoulders. As she began typing on her computer keyboard, her rings slid around annoyingly on her fingers. They always did that when she was cold. The cold seemed to want to stay with her; it seemed to have taken hold of her body. Janet shivered again, then decided to get herself a nice hot cup of coffee from the office kitchen. She knew it would already be made, waiting for her to help herself.

Sam shivered as he stepped into the street. Although the temperature on the street had plunged the night before, there was no way he was going to any shelter. He had been beaten and robbed enough times to know to stay away from those things. The subway grate gave up some warmth which he trapped with the flattened cardboard he kept stowed in a secret place in the park. He had been quick enough to grab the door at the gas station's washroom before it could click shut so that meant a chance to use a little soap and water. Razor blades were the least of his worries. But man, a hot cup of coffee would warm him up. Sam imagined wrapping his hands around the curved surface and inhaling the rich, creamy-sweet aroma. A lady executive was walking his way. Maybe if he smiled real nice she'd give him a loonie.

Sara shivered as she waited for the school bus. It hadn't been so bad when she was walking, but now standing around in the cold morning air, she could feel her toes starting to hurt. Her ears were freezing. The other kids didn't seem to mind the weather; maybe it was because they were so busy talking together they didn't have time to be cold. They didn't talk to Sara. She was one of 'them', the family with all the kids, the ill-fitting clothes and the whacko mom. If she could have had something hot before leaving the house, she knew she could have ignored the cold. Maybe. But the cheque didn't come until Friday and they were out of bread. Sara knew when she got to school she could go to the breakfast club. Even though mom told her not to, that they poisoned the food, she ate it anyway.

Jack shivered as he moved out from under the pile of blankets. The power went off last night - again, and the house was as cold as a morgue. And as silent. These days it seemed as though there were a lot more power outages than there used to be. The wind last night probably caused it, bringing down a tree which brought down a line. There were plenty of trees where Jack lived; the end of a road that was at the end of another road that ran off a highway. The silence was no hum of machinery this morning. The fridge, the stove, the freezer, the pump. Nothing. Jack kind of liked the quiet. He almost hated to disturb it with his ax. But he needed some fresh kindling if he was going to get a fire going in the wood stove. It was the only way he was going to get that morning coffee.

The children shivered as they sat back on their heels and huddled together against the biting wind that tore down from the mountains to the east. Since the bombing stopped, they weren't so afraid to be outside. It was better than the dark, damp cave. Barely. They watched their mother trying to coax the pot into boiling so they might all have a swallow of something in their small bellies. But the fire was meagre. As she blew on the coals, her face almost looked fat. But it was just an illusion and lasted only a second. The youngest child whimpered slightly and his older brother pulled him closer under the ragged blanket. Above their heads, the clouds continued to gather, promising snow any day now. The children didn't think of the approaching winter; they only thought of the small fire that flickered before them. But their mother did.

Janet pulled her office door shut, locked it and headed toward the parking lot to go home. Her building had finally warmed up so she had been able to toss aside the sweater and unplug the heater. But they were there for the next time she needed them and there would always be a next time. The cold and irritated mood she had brought to work that morning had long since gone and now she hummed under her breath, thinking of the next few days. It was the Thanksgiving Weekend. She was going to spend it with her brother Jack at his place out in the boonies. They had their own little tradition every year. Janet brought the food, Jack provided the setting and they both talked about how lucky they were to have it all. Only this year, despite her humming on the way home, there was something bothering Janet. But she couldn't seem to put her finger on it. Maybe it was just the cold.

This photo was taken in 1960 at Deer Lodge on Lake Kashagawigamog. Known as one of the most popular lodges in the area at the time, many people got their first introduction to the Highlands through vacationing at Deer Lodge. It continued to be a hot spot until the 80s when the lodge changed direction and catered to groups of seniors. The lodge eventually closed and the land was subsequently purchased for condominium development. That project has yet to come to fruition. Photo courtesy of Don Van Nood.

letters to the editor

Parent should sign name in letter

To the Editor:

In response to "Heed this: a message to parents," in your Tuesday, October 8, edition of The Echo.

I am rather disturbed that this parent would write to the editor about a party that their teenager held at their home without signing their name.

The parent came across as totally disgusted as to the shape their premises was left in. They went on vacation leaving their teenager to look after their home, and he/she had a party that ended up getting out of hand.

Most likely alcohol and/or drugs were present at this party, since an act of malicious damage was done to your home and property. Do you condone alcohol in your home, stored in a cabinet that is not locked? Has your child drunk with your permission at home? Did you give your child permission to hold a party when you were away?

I know exactly where my daughter is on a Friday and/or Saturday night. I can leave my daughter at home for an extended period of time and come home to a house that is immaculate and with no other persons there or without other people ever being there while I was away.

If you raise a child to think that parties, alcohol, drugs are the "thing to do" then they will follow suit and carry on the practices shown by their parents. I take extreme pride in knowing that my teenager is a responsible young lady who does not need checking up on as she conducts herself in a mature manner.

Teach a child from an early age on how to conduct themselves and only good will come of it. But don't blame the other children or parents, for your child's stupidity. They have a mouth they should have called the local OPP and asked for assistance. "Pride Goes Before a Fall"

Fewer than half of students in applied stream passed literacy

The third aspect, Brohman says, is just getting it through to the kids that they really have to try hard – “this is not just a fun exercise” – and that they have to pass in order to make their four years of work to Grade 12 count for a diploma.

The work the schools have done since the 2000 pilot test has resulted in a 13 per cent increase in passing scores in the board and a seven per cent increase in the province.

Some other worrying information that came out of this round of test results is that although 87 per cent of Ontario's Grade 10 students in the academic stream passed the test, only 44 per cent of the 21,581 students in the applied stream passed.

“The education system has to encompass all students not just those who breeze through,”

Gary Brohman

This has prompted Elizabeth Witmer, education minister, to float the idea in the media of creating an alternative diploma to help students who cannot pass the Grade 10 test. She has also said she may consider a proposal by a consortium of 20 public school boards to use a longer-term literacy “portfolio” that would require students reach the same level of achievement but over the course of a school year instead of a two-day exam.

While an alternative diploma may be a possibility, Brohman says, there has always been a Grade 10 certificate of education that may be a realistic option for some students.

The reality is that there is a group of wonderful kids who are not going to pass the test, says the principal, but he insists this same group is perfectly able to become productive, needed members of society. He added they should not be training every kid to be a doctor, that the community needs all different types of people.

“Anything we can do to recognize these kids who are different learners and learn at a different pace is welcome. The education system has to encompass all students not just those who breeze through,” says Brohman.

Reading and writing outside of school: what students say they do

The following is the result of a province wide survey conducted by the provincial government's Education Quality and Accountability Office at the same time as the last literacy test.

Percentage of students who indicated that:

- they read English outside of school for three or more hours a week.

	Females	Males
They read the following material:	39%	31%
- biographies or non-fiction	21%	18%
- comics	26%	33%
- internet material	75%	69%
- letters	46%	17%
- magazines	82%	64%
- newspapers	44%	48%
- novels or fiction	63%	41%

They write in English outside of school for three or more hours a week.

	33%	25%
They do the following types of writing.
- e-mail messages or chat room	87%	82%
- letters, journals, diaries	66%	15%
- song lyrics, poetry	32%	19%
- stories, fiction	15%	11%

A cheque of $50,000 was presented to the Haliburton Highlands Water Trails committee to assist the volunteers with their work in preserving local canoe routes, particularly those through Algonquin Highlands. everything. We owe Bill Hutson a few beers,” Shuttleworth joked.

Hutson is the Minden office MNR district supervisor who took it upon himself to make the application on behalf of the committee and Algonquin Highlands.

The money will be officially going to the municipality and then funneled to the committee that was formally known as the Frost Centre Area Coordination Committee. Tom Gardner, an Algonquin Highlands councillor who sits on the committee, said it was news to him as well and had not come to council yet.

The committee is moving forward with new signage for more than 100 campsites in the Frost Centre. Each sign will designate how many campers and tents should be on the site. Shuttleworth says the signs with the new HHWT logo, a provincial and municipal logo are a priority to install before the snow flies.

He also explained that a brochure will give the committee more visibility amongst visitors and begin a public education process on proper camping etiquette and the impact, particularly on islands, of deforestation and water quality.

Since he and committee members have just learned about the grant approval, they have not had time to discuss the details of how the money will be spent or when it will be available. Shuttleworth says two key players in planning, Hutson and Keith Clark, who is the Frost Centre director, are both on holidays and they will have to examine what they can do with the money at that time.

HHSS vs. Saints, 2-0
HHSS vs. TASS, 3-1

The HHSS senior women's field hockey team is continuing to dominate this season and it was proven at last week's home double-header.

Haliburton's Red Hawks have improved their record to 5-1 and are currently in second place behind Crestwood. With one game left in the season the Red Hawks have solidified a playoff berth.

In their first game against St. Peters things started slowly. Both teams battled hard, each earning four penalty sides and four shots in the first half. Late in the first half, a booming shot by Cassie Kulas from outside the goal circle broke through the Saints defence and bounced around in front of the net until Sarah Oakley passed to Kerri Matysek who made no mistake, scoring the first goal of the day from a quick low shot.

The second half continued to be a tight affair with neither team giving an inch. After the Red Hawks earned two consecutive penalty sides they found their insurance marker from Matysek. Inbound by Matysek, Kathryn Berube took the pass and let off a quick shot. It was blocked. The loose ball was left to an alert Matysek who scored her second goal of the game. A last ditch charge by the Saints created a goal, but only after the final whistle was blown and the Hawk cheers could be heard. Despite the

Saints' eight penalty sides versus the Hawks' three, the home side still managed to out-shoot the Saints four to one.

Kate Foulds earned another shutout in a string of shutouts for the starting keeper.

A few hours later the Red Hawks hit the field again. This time they were pitted against Thomas A. Stewart Secondary. In the first few minutes the Hawks jumped to a quick lead that they would never relinquish. Off the first penalty side and the first shot Matysek opened the scoring again, earning her third goal of the day. The assist came from Berube who has been a standout in the midfield.

On the second goal of the game Matysek figured on the score sheet again with an assist to Meghan Foulds' first goal of the season.

Captain Cassie Kulas tallied the final goal off a penalty side.

Fatigue set in for both teams by the conclusion of the game. The Red Hawks earned 12 total shots against three for TASS.

Coach Traci Hubbert says this team consists of fighters and expects this team to go far.

"This team doesn't quit when it's down...it keeps going," Hubbert said.

Matysek is the team scoring leader with more than 50 per cent of the team's totals, and continues to improve with the added playing time.

This week at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School the Red Hawks were busy playing a host of games with all the sports they are involved with.

The varsity girls rugby team played a tough game against I.E. Weldon on October 8. A great game was played by Chandal Sutherland, Nicole Grove, Jaime Pettes, Adele Callfas and Kasia Siek. Pettes scored a try in the contest. The Red Hawks lost 17-33.

On October 8 the junior girls field hockey team won their first game against Holy Cross 3-1. Goals scored by Kourtney Matysek, Jill Brown, Belinda Howitt, and assisted by Nicole Manary.

The girls junior field hockey team played another game on October 8 against Crestwood. During the last 5 minutes Crestwood scored and won 1-0.

The senior men's soccer team played on the road against I.E. Weldon on October 9. Despite the 1-0 loss, the hawks played a very good game and even dominated the first half. There was great goaltending by Matt Moore in the second half to keep the game close.

The junior soccer team gave a great effort in their game against IE Weldon. The forward line pressured the defense to force a penalty shot which turned into a goal by Adrian Martin.

On October 9 the cross country team put forth a great effort at the practice run for OFSSA. Sean Keaney was a top finisher for the Red Hawks, finishing in the top 10 per cent. Wishing them luck at the Kawartha next week.

At home, the junior girls basketball team couldn't surmount a 14-point deficit at the half against the Fenelon Falls Falcons and lost 41-20. They'll hope to improve this week when the I.E. Weldon Wildcats come to the HHSS roost on Thursday at 3:30.

And that rounds up the sports at HHSS. Have a good week!

HHSS vs. Kenner 36-18

HHSS Jr. boy's football coach says a balanced ground attack is the key to their success this season.

All season, coach Bruce Griffiths has used three players for his ground attack: Matt Roberts, Kevin Crofts, and Wayne Shelley.

In their last game the three combined for 271 yards against Kenner with two others adding more than 100 yards to the rushing totals.

"It's a part of our success," Griffiths said.

Scoring in the home game came from Roberts with two touchdowns, Shelley one touchdown, Cross one touchdown, Deni Knezevic one touchdown, Tim Pettit one touchdown and Kenton McGann with four converts. Roberts was also able to run in a two-point conversion.

The Red Hawks are undefeated with three wins and one tie.

After beating Kenner last week the Red Hawks are assured of a playoff spot and the three remaining games will determine if that is at second or third place. One of those games is against the undefeated Fenelon Falls Falcons and will prove to be the toughest test.

"They're the team to beat again this year," Griffiths said.

Despite their undefeated record, the coach is looking to improve the defense.

"We haven't had a shutout and we're working on it," Griffiths said.

Starting quarterback, Justin Abbs, is expected back this week after missing the last two games to bruised ribs. The backup, Jesse Johnson, has earned his spot at the quarterback position and is expected to started this week. His performance in today's game against I.E. Weldon will determine if he remains at that position.

Hawks' road loss in Lindsay includes co-captain

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

Up until now the senior men's soccer team was enjoying an injury-free season. That's over. Senior Co-captain, T.J. Wilkinson, is out for four months, due to a groin injury suffered in the Red Hawks 1-0 loss against top-ranked, and undefeated I.E. Weldon.

The injury occurred when he lunged for a loose ball, causing him to stretch and twist awkwardly. He is confident that despite his absence there are plenty of guys to step in for him.

"I'm not worried. There are enough guys to replace me," Wilkinson said. He expects the quick forwards such as Mitsunori Takao, Matt Flowers, and Zach Whittum will play admirably in his absence.

Wilkinson is expected to miss the rest of the season and his doctor has advised him to refrain from all sports for four months.

Despite the diagnosis, Wilkinson is steadfast in his resolve to play if the Red Hawks earn a berth in the COSSA finals.

"If we make COSSA I'm there," Wilkinson said.

The Red Hawks have suffered their only losses of the season to the Wildcats, but have come a long way since their 3-0 loss in their first meeting with the best in Kawartha.

"[In the first half] we outplayed them so badly," Wilkinson said. He said the Hawks tallied some 15 shots in the first few minutes, sending the Wildcats on their heels.

Coach Rob Gervais agreed with the co-captain's synopsis and if given another chance they should be able to beat the Wildcats. Unfortunately, the Wildcats turned things around by the second half earning a free kick off a Hawk defensive error. They scored to hand the men in red and white their second loss this 2002 campaign.

Gervais said it was the closest contest for the Wildcats and showed the team that they can compete with the best.

During the post-game handshakes, Wilkinson said the Wildcats really took notice of the strides made by the Hawk program and noticed "they're worried."

Special to the Echo

Welcome to another year of exciting hockey. The Rowden Construction Novice A team would like to take a moment of your time to list this year's team roster: Rob Lewis in goal, Cole Rowden #14, Samantha Tallman #8, Marlee Gadway #16, Ryan Hunter #10, Michael Mazara #18, Brett Yake #17, Dylan Howorko #11, Dillion Upton #19, Stephan Schollig #12 and Mark Dobie #15.

The team is positively influenced by a talented coaching staff with Ron Yake as Head Coach, Bernie Upton as Assistant Coach, Don Lewis as Trainer, Janice Lewis and Nancy Hunter as Treasurers. The person who has organized the team's social life until January 2003, that dedicated Manager, Janice Lewis, has created a very exciting schedule so you will see some great home town hockey.

Right from the first practice, the parents have been very positive and dedicated getting their kids right into the swing of things.

The coaching staff offers the team an excellent work out each practice, taking advantage of every moment of ice time, demonstrating skills and knowledge to play the game of hockey. This direction of coaching is obviously working well with the team as they dominated the play in both games played so far this season.

The first regular season game was played in Haliburton against Manvers. Each player is passing well, solid defensive and offensive plays, not just one key player on the team, they all are supportive key players.

With ample opportunity in the first two games the coaches got their skills into perspective and had the team concentrating on passing the puck in both home openers. They shut out Manvers 16-0 and won against Huntsville 13-1. Every player on the team was involved getting either goals and or assists. Now that's pass-the-puck-around hockey!

They have a full schedule ahead of them with the team to participate in their first tournament on October 19 in Cannington.

Home game in Haliburton October 20th at 11:00am

Home game in Minden October 27th at 11:00am.

Any perception that the current youth are less motivated than their parents was easily erased by the throngs of HHSS students accepting $30,000 worth of awards at the high school on Saturday, Oct. 12.

Hundreds of students were honoured for their academic achievements in front of friends and family on the Thanksgiving weekend. Past graduates from universities and colleges, from all over the province, were able to catch up with former classmates, learning about each other's new experiences and reliving past ones.

At the ceremony's conclusion Principal Gary Brohman looked out into the audience of past graduates and current students.

"We're all-right," Brohman said, adding that looking out into the crowd of HHSS award winners shatters the negative image of young people created by the small minority of delinquent youth. If there is any doubt about it, he said, "just come to an awards ceremony to see it in real life."

An Adventure in Iran

Cranberry Lake
resident George Flint
recently talked with Minden columnist
Pat McNinch
to discuss an extraordinary experience he had while living and working in Iran

Pat McNinch

Special to The Echo

In 1974 George Flint was the director of a heavy equipment manufacturing company in England. That year his parent company asked him to establish a subsidiary plant in Iran. George and his wife, Collie, happily moved to the Iranian city of Ahwaz, where they lived and worked for several years.

The new company was a joint operation with the Iranian government and the private sector, manufacturing high-tech equipment for the oil and petrochemical industries. George developed many Iranian friends and acquaintances, becoming quite knowledgeable about the country, its politics and its people.

Life was good for the Flints, with a fine home and servants, plenty of culture and a wide circle of friends. From time to time the local government even offered the services of Savak, a special secret branch of the Iranian police, to accompany George and his wife at various functions, seeing to it that they were protected and well treated.

The plant was completed in 1976 and flourished under combined Iranian and British management, with George as a director and deputy chairman.

Still, it was an uneasy time in Iran as the Shah tried to bring his country into the 20th Century while radical mullahs on one hand, and Communist agitators on the other, worked against his reforms.

One day, after many confrontations with a certain Iranian employee, George finally found it necessary to dispense with the man's services. The employee, a zealous member of the Communist Party, was taken sometime later by Savak and tortured. The reasons for this were never made clear to George or his company. It was generally accepted, however, that the man had been arrested because of his ongoing efforts in behalf of the communists to disrupt the Shah's rule.

Early in 1978 George's responsibilities with the new company were concluded and he and Collie returned to England. Shortly thereafter, he decided to leave his British employer and branch out on his own as a consultant for that company and several others. George knew Iran and its people better than most and he still had many friends in that country. What better place to begin his new consulting business? Off he flew again to Tehran in October 1978, accompanied by a business friend, Mike Mottram.

Things went quite well for a time, but in 1979, the Shah was finally overthrown by an unholy alliance between Moslem clerics and the Communist Party.

DARREN LUM/Echo

A Persian rug from Iran hangs on the wall of George Flint's home on Cranberry Lake, acting as a key to the past. Not only does the rug remind Flint of his imprisonment and wrongful accusations but it also reminds him of experiences from a lifetime ago.

Continuing to promote his consulting business, George decided to visit with his former company in Ahwaz. He telephoned the new management that he and Mottram were on their way from Tehran. When they arrived at the office they were quite surprised to find the employee whom George had previously fired was now rehired, and chairman of the company's Revolutionary Council. Almost immediately two armed men were pointing their rifles at George saying, "Mr. Flint, we would like to ask you some questions".

"And they did," says George, "all day long".

The interrogators informed Mottram that he was free to go, but he chose instead to remain with George to lend what help and support he could. Allowed to go home that evening, the two friends realized their best move was to "get out of Dodge" as fast as they could. They called the British Embassy in Tehran and were told that conditions in Ahwaz were too dangerous. If they wanted the Embassy's assistance they would have to get to Tehran.

They tried to obtain plane tickets. Mottram had no problem, but mysteriously, no seats were available for Flint. The pair then raced to the train station and got on the first train to Tehran. After a couple of tense hours, just as they began to breathe a little easier, two very young, armed soldiers burst into their compartment.

"We have orders to arrest two Englishmen traveling on this train, and you are the only two Englishmen aboard," they announced.

"We could not fault their logic," says Flint.

Flint and Mottram were taken off the train under guard. They and their young captors began walking down the dark track where heaven only knew what fate lay ahead. Flint noticed, however, the guards were taking them back and forth across the tracks, even crawling between and under boxcars. He finally asked, "Are you lost? Because if you're looking for the station, it's back the other way". So, back they all marched to board a train returning to Ahwaz where the two men were summarily placed under house arrest.

Iranian justice does not always see fit to lay any particular charges against those whom it arrests. Not knowing the reason for their detainment, Flint and Mottram were convinced they would simply be shot and never know why. Mottram, who had always had a particular fondness for alcohol, told Flint that what they needed were a few toddies to calm their nerves.

In that strictly Moslem country liquor was in very short supply and its consumption was largely forbidden. Mottram, ever-resourceful in such matters, said he knew of a certain bishop of the Chaldean Catholic Church nearby, who always kept a bottle or three available for "emergency" purposes.

With armed guards at their front door, the pair crept stealthily from the back of the house and headed for the church. After an enjoyable few hours with the bishop and his cache they stumbled back home, feeling remarkably less apprehensive about their future, at least for that night.

Two days later, Flint was hauled into the revolutionary court to face unknown charges with no lawyers permitted. The bishop had told him to stand up to whatever accusations were made and not to be intimidated.

This might be easier said than done, but Flint was an Englishman after all, and he would do his utmost to defend his honor and, quite possibly, his life. The main accusation seemed to be that Flint had turned over his former employee, plus four others, to his friends in

Savak to be tortured. This was a serious charge and, although completely untrue, could have resulted in his permanent imprisonment, or worse. Many of those present in court had worked for Flint at the manufacturing plant. Among them was his chief accuser, that same vindictive man whom he had fired.

The trial went on for two days. Heeding the bishop's advice, Flint continued to argue his innocence and finally showed his former employees the expensive watch they had given him when he left the company. "If you gave this to me, not out of respect and friendship, but out of fear," he said, "then I don't want it!" He threw the watch back to them, and went on, "If there is any one of you who honestly believes that I could be capable of condemning one man to torture, let alone five men, then speak up now".

There was silence, while George held his breath. No one said a word.

At 12:30 that night, the five judges said they had heard enough and would retire to deliberate the case. When they returned 45 minutes later Flint at last learned what all the charges were against him: collaboration with Savak, corruption, and wastage of national resources; a terrible litany of lies.

Then he heard the verdict, "Innocent on all counts!" There were cheers and some boos, but George was free. At 2 a.m. he was invited to the former Governor General's office to discuss future joint ventures just like the one he had accomplished in 1976. A communiqué to that effect was issued and he was once again in business.

George returned to Iran several times over the next two years, witnessing firsthand the turbulent era of the Iran/Iraq war and the US hostage negotiations. After his wife died in 1984, George closed down his business and sold his home in England. Fulfilling a dream he and Collie had shared, he headed for the island of Cyprus where he lived and sailed his 33 ft. yacht for the next ten years.

When his son moved with his family from England to Canada, George decided to make his home here as well. The romance of the Canadian North, with its magnificent scenery and numerous waterways, had already captured his imagination. (He admits that brochures never seemed to mention our ravenous insect population). He bought a house on Cranberry Lake and at age 80, still fit and an indomitable sailor, he loves to paddle his canoe and kayak along the rivers and lakes of Haliburton.

School advisory council named in Wilberforce

The annual turkey dinner served by the Wilberforce Agricultural Fair Board was again as delicious as anticipated. Topping off the tasty turkey and vegetables was an array of pies from which to choose. Thanks so much to all the workers who provide this meal, in such a tastefully decorated setting. Before dinner, awards from the 2002 Fair were presented. The Lions Club Trophy was won by Mr. Charles Hughes for the most points for entries in the 2002 Fair. It was presented by Ken Noble and Ron Barr from the Lions Club. Charles Hughes by entering many items from his family farm and garden, and his willingness to lend a hand to make the fair a success. In the children's section, first prize went to Ashley Tripp and second prize was won by Johnna Hutchings. The draw for winners of prizes in the fund raiser for the historic Essonville Church was made Saturday after the Fair dinner. The quilt was won by Lettie Thain, the garden statue by Stan Sweet and the $25 gift certificate from the Dreamweaver shop went to Dan Linkert. The quilt was made and donated by Phona Sisson. The garden sculpture given by Agnew's Store. The Essonville Church committee is very pleased with the funds raised and thank all who contributed in any way.

On Oct. 10 the students and staff at the Wilberforce School celebrated Thanksgiving with their annual harvest lunch. Each class contributed a specific thing such as the veggies, the turkey was provided by the school and cooked by volunteers. Everyone enjoyed the meal.

Part of the celebration of the Wilberforce United Church's 113 Anniversary Service to be held next Oct. 20 at 11:30 a.m. will be the Gentlemen of Song bringing special music. Stay for the pot-luck luncheon and time of fellowship that follows the service.

The Wilberforce School Advisory Council this year consists of Janice Guyton - chairperson, Cindy Ruddell - Secretary, Fundraising - Tammy Vaughan, Laura Casey, Lynn Waugh,

Angela young, Marlene Vieira, Rose Woolacott and Carol Maracle, Principal Mrs. B. Murphy and Teaching Rep. Carol Mathewson. Non teaching rep is Andy Lewis. There was a vacancy for a Community Rep. with all the recent school closings perhaps someone should make an extra effort to fill this position. The School Council represents the parents of the community to work with the school to provide the best learning opportunities for the over one-hundred students at our school.

One of the best physical exercises that humans can perform is walking. That, and running, come naturally for many children. So it is exciting to learn of the participation of children from the Wilberforce School in cross country running. The only things needed are decent running shoes and a willingness to run - to practise by and train by running. The following students participated in the run at the J.D.H. elementary School in Haliburton on September 26: Shenese Alden, Alana Coty, Heather Cumming, Jaimie Dack, Mike Dack, Marlee Gadway, Jackie Lawr, Emina McNeil, Kirstyn Mulley, Machanzie Neumann, Jordan Visscher, and Elizabeth Yankovitch.

Machenzie Neumann placed 2nd in the Intermediate Girls section. The team of Shenese Alden, Jaimie Dack, Marlee Gadway and Emina McNeil were the 3rd place team in the Primary Girls division. Well done, runners!

OPP seek help

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

If the police are to find the person who struck and killed Jesse Dickson, then they'll need the public's help, says Haliburton Highlands OPP Staff Sgt. Bob Walli.

"Solving it is going to take help from the public," he said last week. "We still welcome any help."

The police are "still looking" for a suspect and suspect vehicle in the hit and run on a lonely stretch of road in the early hours of September 15.

The 17-year-old Toronto youth was walking from Eagle Lake to his cottage on Haliburton Lake. He was picked up by a passing motorist for part of the journey and was last seen around 2:30 a.m.

A passing motorist came across him lying on the road about six kilometres north of Eagle Lake. The first call to the police was at 3:30 a.m..

Police have determined that Jesse was standing at the time of the accident and his injuries are consistent with being struck by a vehicle.

Sgt. Walli says that there "may or may not be significant damage to the vehicle."

If the vehicle was taken to a garage to be repaired "there's any number of explanations a person can use to mislead a body shop, particularly if there's no insurance claim."

There is, however, no statute of limitations on the types of charges that would be laid in a hit-and-run so any information at any time is helpful to the police.

They would like to hear from anyone who saw a vehicle in that area the night of the accident. Call 286-1431 or CrimeStoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS.

Police are also appealing to those persons involved in this hit and run to turn themselves in to the OPP or their local police.

Weight gain not automatic when quitting smoking: health unit

If you are thinking about quitting smoking this year, don't let the fear of gaining weight stop you from trying.

"Quitting smoking doesn't automatically mean you will gain weight," says Anne-Marie Cyr, a Public Health Nurse with the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit. "Studies show the average person gains less than 10 pounds when they quit smoking, but it is also possible to quit and maintain your current weight."

The HKPR District Health Unit is encouraging smokers interested in quitting to consider entering the Quit Smoking 2002 Contest. The province-wide contest is designed to help smokers set a quit date, prepare themselves and then stop smoking by Oct. 15 for at least one month. The contest is open to Ontario residents who are daily smokers aged 19 years and older. Participants must register by midnight Oct. 15, quit smoking by Oct. 15 and remain smoke-free until Nov. 15 to be eligible to win a new Honda Civic DX-G or one of seven Samsung Digital Cameras.

Smoking raises your metabolism (nicotine can cause your heart rate to increase by as much as 33 beats a minute) and reduce the amount of oxygen in your blood. This makes your heart work harder and makes you a prime candidate for a heart attack or stroke.

One of the immediate benefits of kicking the habit, Cyr says, is that food tastes and smells better. When people gain weight after they quit, she says, it is usually because they are eating more. They replace cigarettes with food and try to quell the nicotine urge with snacks. With a little planning, Cyr says people can keep their weight under control.

"Keep your hands busy. Doodle, write a letter, do a crossword. When you do need to put something in your mouth, make it sugarless gum, a carrot or celery stick. Whatever you decide to do, just make sure it is not associated with your old smoking habits," she advises.

For more information about the contest or to obtain an entry form contact the Health Unit office, or enter on-line at www.quitsmokingontario.ca

Crafters hit Gooderham

Welcome to our local community news. It has been a few years since someone has taken on the challenge to supply you with our local news, so please feel free to call me with any info you may have on upcoming events, articles, etc.

I relocated back to my home town a little over a year ago, and found that it had matured into a fine place to live. We now have many great on-going programs (for all ages) in our community.

The first Monday of each month at 7 p.m. the "Gooderham Crafters" meet in the library. For more information please contact Marilyn at 447-2569.

Are you interested in "yoga?" Each Monday evening at 7 p.m. at the Community Centre is the place to be. Call Effie at 447-3153 for more details.

Want to access the internet or just use different programs such as Lotus, Word Perfect etc.? The CAP Centre at the municipal building can give you that opportunity. there are hours to fit everyone's busy schedule, and they are: Monday through Friday from 2 to 5 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m., and Saturdays 10 a.m. to noon, for information please call Al at 447-3440.

And for the card buffs, each Monday afternoon starting at 1 p.m. bridge is played and euchre is every Thursday evening at 7 p.m. at the Community Centre. Call Doreen at 447-2877.

There is also a 'play group' for pre-schoolers at the municipal building, lower level, each Wednesday morning from 9 a.m. - 12 noon.

This is a great way for the youngsters to interact and the parents to visit. Call Margie at 447-2921.

Enjoy quilting or would you like to learn? The Quilters meet each Thursday from 1-4 p.m. in the basement at the Pentecostal Church. For more information call Marjorie at 447-2169. The quilts upon completion are given to families in need in the area.

I had the pleasure this week to speak with Doreen Nicholls, manager of the local L.C.B.O., with regards to the construction which is in progress behind their existing building. Slated to open November 4 is a new 1,200 square foot modular building which will replace the existing store. Gaetean's Carpentry Construction of Sudbury is the contractor.

Thanks for joining us in our first news of the year, and we extend a warm welcome to everyone to come out and join us in our community programs.

Staying safe on Halloween

Hallowe'en - it's almost here. Stay Alert Stay Safe, the charity that helps keep kids and communities safe, would like to remind parents to use caution on this special night by discussing the following rules with all their little ghosts and goblins.

- Wear make-up instead of a mask so you can see properly!
- Go trick or treating with family or friends. Let people know your route!
- Have an adult check the treats you collect before you eat them!
- Walk - don't run; and look all ways before crossing the street. Trick or treat on one side of the street, then the other side!

- Only go to homes with their lights on!
- Don't go anywhere with someone you don't know!
- If someone invites you alone into a house say "No Thanks"!
- Use a flashlight to help you see in the dark!
- Walking is easier when you have on a short costume!
- Do you know where the block Parent homes are in your area?

INSIDE:

- Winter's coming and it's time for service
- Anti-freeze plays a critical role
- Clean oil the lifeblood of engines
- Don't drive without winter tires
- and more pre winter service tips

Now is the perfect time to take care of your vehicle

For several years now, October has been deemed car care month. It makes sense; after all, October is the perfect time to make sure your vehicle is ready to endure the harsh winter months.

Compared to the relatively temperate summer climate, the approaching winter months will be fairly hard on vehicles, both when it comes to their mechanics and appearance. In fact, many vehicles will not make it to see next spring. It's crazy when you think of how many things you need to have checked on your vehicle to ensure it will run well throughout the winter, or to ensure it will start after a long period of hibernation, depending on your particular situation.

Unless you are a seasoned do-it-yourself mechanic willing and able to spend a few hours on the weekend winterizing your vehicle (or vehicles), it's time to make an appointment with your dealer or regular mechanic.

While your vehicle is being winterized, have the other components checked, such as the tires, suspension, brakes, oil, exhaust, lights and the various liquids. Fixing any problems will only help your vehicle run better, and it will make driving in difficult winter conditions a little bit easier.

You can count on local auto care experts to make sure your vehicle is ready ready for winter

Surviving a Canadian winter:

Tips to prepare your vehicle for the cold weather

It's a well-known fact that every year a large majority of the more than 16 million vehicles on the road are caught unprepared for the first blast of really cold weather. Don't be caught unprepared. Spending a little bit of time and effort now, can save you time, effort, frustration, and even money later on.

Here is a quick list of things to check before that first nasty blast of winter:

Cooling System

If it hasn't been done in a while, flush out your cooling system with a good chemical cleaner and put in fresh anti-freeze. Remember to use the anti-freeze in its proper proportions. Pure anti-freeze (most often made of ethylene glycol) does not cool or protect as well as the proper mixture of water and anti-freeze which is described on the anti-freeze container.

And don't forget to check containers, belts, hoses, the pressure caps and thermostat.

Battery & Electrical System

If your battery is more than a few years old, have it checked. Coldweather is hard on batteries. Be sure connections are clean and tight.

Corroded or loose connections can give the symptoms of a weak or dead battery.

Engine

Is it time for a tune-up? Faulty wiring, worn spark plugs, a sticking choke or emission control devices that need attention, can all lead to hard starting. A diagnostic check-up of the engine can be a good winter pre-investment.

Oil & Filter

Dirty oil can give you trouble in the winter. Now's the time to change it.

Change the oil filter too! And don't forget to check the other filters on your car, including the fuel, air and transmission filters. (The transmission filter should be changed with the transmission fluid when it is changed during regular preventative maintenance.)

For every 50 Celsius of temperature drop, your tire pressure decreases by one pound. Tires which are under-inflated by only eight pounds can reduce gas mileage by five percent and cut tire life by 25 percent or more. Check your tire pressure regularly.

Emergency Kit

And don't forget to carry an emergency kit in your vehicle during the winter months, it could save your life.

Following these simple tips will help you to survive another Canadian winter.

Winter's coming:

Is your vehicle serviced and ready?

Getting your vehicle ready for cold-weather driving will give you peace of mind in the winter months ahead. The following tips will help you get your vehicle ready. Some of the tips are easy; others require a professional auto technician.

1. The Basics. Begin by reading the owner's manual and becoming familiar with the various components and systems. Follow the recommended service schedules.

2. General Cleaning/Maintenance. Wash and wax your vehicle to help protect its finish. Inspect all lights and bulbs. Replace worn wiper blades; make sure you have plenty of washer fluid. Carry emergency gear — a shovel, a blanket, etc.

3. Battery. The only accurate way to detect a weak battery is with the professional equipment available at a good repair shop. Routine care: Scrape away corrosion from posts and cable connections; clean all surfaces; re-tighten connections. Wear eye protection and rubber gloves.

4. Engine Oil. The oil and filter should be changed as specified in your owner's manual — more often (every 3,000 miles), if you do lots of stop-and-go driving, carry heavy loads or drive long distances.

5. Cooling System. The cooling system should be

When temperatures dip well below freezing and snow blankets the landscape, you'll be glad you took the time and spent the money to have your vehicle serviced, its systems checked, and snow tires installed flushed and refilled about every 24 months. The level, condition and concentration of the antifreeze should be checked periodically (wait for the engine to cool off!). The tightness and condition of drive belts, clamps and hoses should be checked by a pro.

6. Engine Performance. Correct rough idling, hard starts, stalling or diminished power before harsh weather sets in. Describe any changes in your engine's performance to a qualified technician. The air, fuel and PCV filters should be replaced according to the manufacturers' recommendations.

7. Heater/Defroster. For comfort and safety, the heater and defroster should be in good working condition.

8. Tires. Tires should be rotated about every 5,000 miles. The air pressure should be checked once a month; let the tires "cool down" first. Examine tires for tread life, cuts and nicks, uneven wearing and cupping. Check the spare tire and the jack, too. Use caution before installing tire chains; they are not compatible with some of today's "low profile" body styles and tire packages.

9. Brakes. Regular maintenance will extend the life of the brakes and prevent more costly repairs due to neglect. Brakes should be inspected as recommended by your manual, or sooner if you notice pulsations, grabbing, noises or longer stopping distances.

10. Finding Good Auto Service. Ask friends and associates for recommendations. Look for orderly conditions, modern equipment, customer service awards and an attentive staff. Policies regarding pricing and guarantees should be posted.

It's a smart idea to keep a few handy items in your trunk.

Don't be caught unprepared this winter

Winter is full of surprises. Unfortunately, not all of them are pleasant. You could leave for work one sunny morning and while you are busy toiling away, Mother Nature is dumping a few feet of snow on your vehicle. It is for reasons like this that it is important to make sure you have everything you need to deal with this often inhospitable season. This includes keeping a few tools and practical items in your trunk, just in case.

But that doesn't mean you have to fill your trunk with every tool in your garage. The key is to load your trunk with only the necessities. A good snowbrush is one good example. They come in a variety of models, including elaborate versions that can be folded up into a compact size. Other necessities include a shovel, traction-aid accessories that give tires the grip they need to get out of icy messes, and a small toolbox that includes a flashlight, matches and a candle, which can help keep you warm if your car breaks down on an empty highway one night.

Some drivers choose to keep additional items in their trunks, such as jumper cables and a first aid kit, which is always a great idea and not just during the winter. A wool blanket can also come in handy at times.

Antifreeze plays critical role in engine reliability, and not just for winter

Despite efforts to educate people about the importance of properly maintaining their cooling systems by changing their antifreeze annually, it comes as a surprise to find that many have never had their cooling systems serviced at all. And some people think antifreeze is only important for winter driving. It's no wonder that cooling system failure is the No. 1 engine-related cause of roadside breakdowns.

By taking an active interest in your car's cooling system and learning more about proper maintenance procedures, many of these breakdowns can be avoided. Ask yourself these simple questions:

Question 1: Have you checked or changed your antifreeze in the past year?

Question 2: Does your current antifreeze meet your vehicle manufacturer's required freeze-up and boil-over protection standards, which are listed in your owner's manual?

Question 3: Does your current antifreeze provide protection against rust and corrosion in your vehicle's cooling system?

If you answered no to any of these questions, it's time to change your antifreeze to one that will properly work with your cooling system.

Antifreeze is one of the most important fluids used in your car's engine. Not only does it protect the engine from boiling over in hot summer weather and freezing in winter, it also prevents damaging rust and corrosion buildup in the cooling system. To keep your cooling system running, it's important to have your antifreeze changed annually.

Drain — When draining your cooling system, collect the used antifreeze in a sealable container instead of allowing it to drain onto the ground. Take the sealed container to a municipal drop-off site for used antifreeze or to a service station for recycling.

Flush — Flush the entire cooling system to remove rust deposits, grease, dirt, oily residue and used coolant that can contaminate new antifreeze and make it less effective. Many local service centres have special equipment for this job.

Refill — To provide boil-over protection to 265 degrees F and freeze protection to -34 degrees F, refill your cooling system with a minimum 50/50 mix of antifreeze and water. For even better protection, use a mixture of no more than 70-percent antifreeze/30-percent water.

Clean oil: it's the lifeblood of engines

Why is it important to make sure the oil in your vehicle's engine is changed regularly? The answer is simple. Your car's engine generates temperatures in excess of 200°C under normal operating conditions. If it's a turbo, that's more like 300°C! The oil helps protect your engine. Oil prevents metal to metal contact and cleans out dirt and combustion by-products. Many people don't realize that oil is also an important part of the cooling system, dispersing about 20% of engine heat.

Today's cars are designed with smaller, more fuel efficient engines, and are built to tighter tolerances. The engine oils you put in have to be of an equally high standard, and the manufacturers are continually researching new and improved products.

But nothing lasts forever. Over time, the oil will lose some of its viscosity (ability to flow) and will pick up enough dirt and water in suspension that it needs to be replaced. Engine manufacturers generally recommend an oil change ever 5,000 to 6,000 km. If you do nothing else in the way of preventive maintenance, do these oil changes. They are the single and most effective thing you can do for long engine life. And at about $30 per oil and filter change, it is also one of the cheapest.

Are all oils the same? Should you just put any kind of oil in your car? The short answer is no – not all oils are equal. All oils conform to high standards. The biggest difference is in the additives that each company adds. These additives will enhance the oil's cleaning effects in the engine, will lay down a protective layer on the metal walls to reduce internal friction, and help the oil to resist thermal and viscosity breakdown.

There are also other additives or oil treatments you can buy separately. Such additives can help any oil remove engine deposits, protect engine parts, and improve fuel consumption. They are available at automotive stores or wherever you get your oil changed.

The Car Care Council answers some common questions about motor oil:

Q My owner's manual says I need an

API (American Petroleum Institute) service rating SF engine oil. All I can find is SG. Is that okay?

A Yes, the API service ratings proceed in alphabetical order, so SG is a higher standard than SF. Owner's manuals typically say "use SF or higher oils", for example. However, you shouldn't put an SF oil into an engine that requires SG – that could void your warranty and shorten your engine life.

Q What is multigrade oil?

A The grade of an engine oil describes its viscosity (ability to flow). At lower temperatures, oil thickens and doesn't flow as easily – like molasses in January. The lower the number, the

Oils rated at 5W-30 are the best choice for winter, since they make starting easier more easily it will flow at low temperatures. Multigrades are oils that contain additives call viscosity index improvers, and so they offer a range of viscosities (e.g. 5W30). The lower the number in front of the "W", the greater the oil's ability to flow at low temperature. The number after the "W" indicates the oil's viscosity rating at normal engine operating temperatures. The "W" in the grade stands for winter.

Q Do I need a different oil in summer?

A Your owner's manual will tell you what grade of oil your car needs. Most newer cars use a 5W30 oil year round. Older cars may need a bit more viscosity to keep the protective film on the cylinder walls. You'll probably need to use a 10W30 in the summer, switching to a 5W30 in winter for better starting and cold performance.

Q Should I change the oil filter every time

I change the oil?

A Most owner's manuals call for a filter change every second oil change. However, the filter collects all the sludge and dirt from the engine, and your clean oil will be running through a dirty filter after every second oil change. Canadians average 2.8 oil changes per year. The difference between changing the filter every time and every second time is not much more than $5 a year. Considering the importance of clean oil to your engine, it's awfully cheap insurance to change the filter every time. If nothing else, be sure to follow the instructions in your owner's manual.

Q Can I mix different brands of engine oil?

A Yes, if you must. Because all oils are manufactured to API and SAE standards, you can mix different brands. Because every company has its own additives aimed at enhancing the oil's performance in your engine, you should not make a habit of mixing them – you'll get the best performance by using the same oil. At a pinch, it's better to add a litre of 5W30 to an engine running on 10W30 than to run with low oil, but it's not a good idea to mix grades.

Q How often should I check my oil?

A Get to know your car. Some engines burn more oil than others, and you may have to add a litre of oil once or twice between oil changes. Others don't burn much oil. Check it regularly, whenever you get gas or at least once a week. If you've been driving, give the oil a few minutes to settle back into the sump. Then pull the dipstick out; wipe it off, put it back in all the way, and pull it out again. Read the level of the oil – it should be between the lines marked "full" and "add", or "max" and "min", depending on your car.

Five tips for wiper care safety

A clean windshield is a safety feature you can't drive without. Here are five windshield wiper care tips:

- Check the condition of your windshield wiper blades at least once a month when performing routine car maintenance or cleaning. Don't wait until you're driving in hazardous weather.

- Clean the wiper blades with a damp rag when cleaning the windshield. Wipe free of dirt, grime and bugs.

- Wiper blades should be firm and smooth from end to end, not "dried out."

- Immediately replace blades that are chipped, torn, cracked or split.

- Blades should clear, clean and squeegee the glass completely for optimum visibility without skipping or chattering.

Don't drive without winter tires

Everyone needs them for increased safety on the road

It's a strange phenomenon. Winter comes to Canada every single year, but drivers always seem surprised when the first storm of the season hits. It's almost like they are thinking, "Oh, I thought last year would be the last time we'd see winter!"

If you want to drive safely this winter, one of the most important things you need to do is to ensure your tires are in good condition. Sure, last winter was pretty mild in most parts of the country, but that doesn't mean you don't need winter tires. There may not be any snow on the roads today, but that doesn't mean they won't be covered in ice tomorrow. Without a good set of winter tires, you'll have a hard time getting your car going, and an even harder time getting it to stop.

It's simple: If you're going to drive your car during a Canadian winter, you need to have winter tires. While some of the more recent vehicles are designed to help you keep control in snowy conditions, this becomes more of a challenge when ice is a factor. In fact, studies show that you are more likely to lose control of your vehicle on icy roads than on snow-covered roads. Fortunately, tire manufacturers have recently come out with an increasing number of tires that are as reliable on ice as on snow.

Don't take unnecessary risks this winter. Visit your local tire dealer and get advice on the best type of winter tires for your vehicle and budget. If needed, be prepared to spend a bit more for a better quality product. Your safety and that of those around you are riding on it!

Invest in your safety with a good set of winter tires.

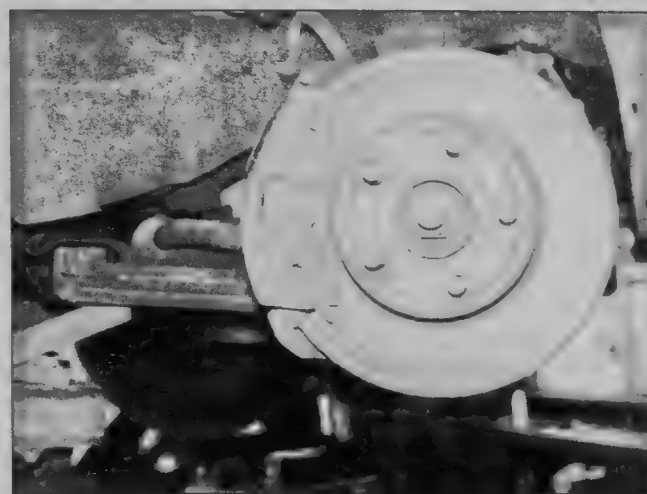

Have your brakes checked

Anyone who has driven in winter conditions doesn't need to be told just how important it is to have a good set of brakes on their vehicle. While your driving style can actually help your brakes last longer, you still need to have them checked regularly.

One of the best things you can do to ensure your safety on the road this winter is to have your entire braking system checked before the cold winter arrives. Many people don't realize just how much the cold weather can affect their brakes. Colder temperatures can harden rubber parts and cause them to crack under pressure.

There are also certain types of brakes that let water or snow penetrate the mechanism, particularly if the small rubber plug is missing (in the case of drum brakes), causing the mechanism to freeze. You might be surprised by how common it is for some vehicles to have one or more brakes frozen solid! What's more, rust can also take its toll and cause certain parts to break, even in the middle of winter. This is a particularly common problem with the connecting lines. Many newer vehicles are equipped with anti-locking brakes, which are extremely handy on icy roads-but only as long as they are in good working condition. So wouldn't you agree it is time to have your brakes checked?

Put radiator service on your list of pre-winter service essentials

Normally, auto experts will tell you to check your radiator in the spring, since this is the time of year that cars generally start to over-heat. But did you know that radiators play an equally important role in the winter?

Winter temperatures are cold enough to keep your engine cool, right? Not necessarily. The truth is that engines can overheat, even in the winter. That's why your radiator has to be in good working condition all year long. If it isn't, your vehicle will not run as efficiently and it could even damage your engine. And don't think that just because your radiator isn't leaking that it is in good condition.

What's more, old or defective radiators will affect your vehicle's heating ability. So if you are having your radiator checked for the winter, ask your mechanic to also check the thermostat. If you are no longer able to comfortably heat your vehicle's interior, have the small heater radiator and all the wires that attach the engine to the heating/cooling system verified as well. If your mechanic recommends that you replace certain parts, do it. Driving this winter will be much more comfortable.

Avoid breakdowns with a pre-winter tune-up

Winter can be a very tough season on any vehicle. Despite all the loving care you bestow on your car or truck throughout the year, getting it ready for winter requires extra special attention. Even new vehicles that don't require any immediate maintenance require some pre-winter treatment.

For vehicles that are a bit older, a pre-winter tune-up is vital for ensuring they run smoothly and efficiently. A pre-winter tune-up should include checking the lighting system and battery, and replacing older components. Thanks to certain tests, a good mechanic will be able to tell you whether or not your battery will last the winter.

After all, nothing is more stressful than finding yourself in a dark, empty parking lot with a car that won't start because the battery is dead.

This is also the perfect time to test the engine wires. Winter can allow a lot of humidity into your engine, causing certain wires to either short-circuit or lose efficiency. Not only could your engine lose some of its power, but gas consumption could also increase significantly. Remember, a good mechanic can prepare your vehicle's mechanics for the cold season, and surely prevent a few unwanted breakdowns.

Include inspection of shocks and struts in pre winter vehicle inspection, service

A common cause of highway accidents is the driver's loss of control of the vehicle. Reasons vary, and may include driving too fast for conditions, rough road surface, momentary inattention at the wheel and many more, but the net result is an accident.

In many cases a more "forgiving" car can help avoid such a crisis. The term relates to a car's ability to cling to the road when the driver enters a curve too fast or to stay on course when the right wheels run onto the shoulder of the road.

A valuable safety feature of a late-model car is its excellent handling characteristics. Good "roadability," which can help keep drivers out of trouble, should remain theirs for the life of their cars if they practice preventive maintenance. This means regular checks, service and replacement of critical systems like brakes, steering and suspension, including tires.

Shock absorbers and struts, defined as ride-control parts, also fit into the category of safety equipment. (A strut has a shock absorber inside a "housing," which connects the suspension to the vehicle's body.) If you're riding on worn shocks and struts, your vehicle may be unsafe not only to driver and passengers, but also to other vehicles on the road.

Your car's ability to steer, brake and accelerate depends on the friction between the tires and the road. Instability of a vehicle, such as bouncing wheels or swaying on turns, is caused by worn shock absorbers and/or struts. Worn shocks will also cause a nose-dive action when you come to a stop and can increase braking distances up to 10 percent.

The symptoms of deteriorating ride control can gradually "sneak up on you" until they become noticeably bad. Such was the case with many owners of several hundred cars and trucks inspected during a recent vehicle check. Forty-four percent had discrepancies with ride control components, mainly leaking shocks or struts. When the condition was brought to the owners' attention, they noted their vehicles had been riding or handling poorly.
